In Conclusion:

Task 1: In this task the main feature was the sharp increase in participants for athletics. Although the overall increase was mentioned, the sudden, increase was not. This was a key point and would have enabled you to mention possible reason for this, maybe the 2012 London Olympics. This covers the 'presents, highlights and illustrates key features' in the TA band.

Cohesive devices are needed throughout both tasks to guide the reader through the detailed information, and substitution to prevent repetition. This will increase the CC score.

There were some opportunities here to increase the vocabulary level. for example, 'money spent' - expenditure, 'sport' - physical recreation, 'dangerous' - menacing, treacherous, life threatening.

Additionally, complex sentence structures are required (using subordinate clauses) to show your English ability and increase the GRA band.

These points are similar to your previous submissions. If you download the IELTS band descriptors, you can see what the expectations are for your tasks. These need to be fulfilled in order to gain a higher overall score.

I wish you well for future submissions.

The scores and feedback provided are by real examiners and are an estimate of your current level. They cannot be used as an official test result and can not be used for immigration or study abroad purposes.

WRITING TASK 1

You should spend about 20 minutes on this task.

The first chart below gives information about the money spent by British parents on their children's sports between 2008 and 2014. The second chart shows the number of children who participated in three sports in Britain over the same time period.

Summarise the information by selecting and reporting the main features and make comparisons where relevant.

You should write at least 150 words.

Average monthly spend on children's sports

Participation in three different sports

The two charts below provide data on the money spent by British parents on their children's sports and the number of participated children in football, athletics and swimming between 2008 and 2014. Both charts illustrate an increasing trend from 2008 to 2014. Football is the most popular sport between British children in all years (8 million participation in 2008 and 9 million participation in 2014).

Comment [1]: This would be better in the body of the text when analysing the graphs

All of the three sports indicate an upward trend between the years 2008 and 2014, but athletics, with about a 4 million increase in participation, has the most growth. While swimming is the second most popular sport between British children in 2008 (about 2 million participation), it turns to the least popular in 2014 (about 4 million participants).

Deleted: participation

Overall, the two given charts show information about the money spent by British parents on their children's sports and the number of children who participated in three sports in Britain between 2008 and 2014. It has been shown that parents spend more money on their children's sport activity and children participate more in 2014 compared with 2008.

Comment [2]: This is an unnecessary repetition of the introduction

First of all, these sports can help countries to have a better economy. Some extreme sports can be done just in specific areas. For example, Canada is the most suitable place for skiing. People from all around the world come to Canada to ski. This tourist attraction will improve Canada's economy. Secondly, banning extreme sports correlates with people's job losses.
